

What's new on Netflix in October 2017 – best films and TV shows to watch

There's a range of new titles popping up too, and less familiar names – though Designated Survivor is back along with Riverdale Season Two on October 12.

The Day I Met El Chapo is worth a punt as well if you're not checking out the classic The Little Mermaid and Ace Ventura.

There's quite a bit to keep you occupied as the night's get colder. So huddle up under your blanket, get that junk food ready (or wine, we're not averse to a glass of wine) and get watching.

Here's what to watch on Netflix this October.

London's Favourite Rooftop Cinema is Back for Summer

Summer is on its way, shout it from the rooftops! Well, four rooftops in particular: the Bussey Building (Peckham), Roof East (Statford) The Queen of Hoxton (Shoreditch) and Kensington Roof Gardens, who have just been announced as participating venues for the summer 2017 series of Rooftop Film Club.

As we trade our underground cinemas for the sky-high, al fresco variety, some things never change – predominantly boxes of popcorn and an action-packed programme of cult classics and recent releases. It's lights, camera, action (literally) on Thursday 4th May as The Rooftop Film Club presses play on films featuring iconic rooftop scenes – hello Mary Poppins (Stratford) and Vertigo (Peckham), with street food and drink available to pick at if popcorn isn't hitting the spot. Shawshank Redemption and The Departed will be shown over the following days, and the cinemas at Shoreditch and Kensington will launch shortly after, on Sunday 7th May. Love birds can trade their deckchairs for love seats big enough for two, as well as a glass of prosecco and bottomless popcorn. If bottomless popcorn doesn't scream true love then we don't know what does.

Summer is definitely on its way.

The Rooftop Film Club launches on Thursday 4th May. Tickets go on sale today.
